... but first a word from our coordinator

I happened to be talking to Dublin, Ireland, the other morning. Seems that Stuart Rosenblatt has roots in our Kielce-Radom area and wanted information about joining. It was like a call from across town instead of across an ocean; he came in loud and clear. He was especially interested in Przedbórz and Staszów, and I told him he had come to the right place at the right time..

"I'm coming to Florida tomorrow," he told me after he'd gotten the information he needed, "and I'll mail you the funds." He, his wife and two children were off on a cruise through the Panama Canal, leaving from Ft. Lauderdale.

Stuart is organizing the Ireland Jewish Genealogical Society and hopes to get it started as soon as he returns.

Ireland is just another of the many countries in which we have members. It seems our Polish relatives escaped to a huge variety of places. Aside from the U.S. and Canada, we practically circle the globe.

This issue of our Journal is ideal for our new Irish member. It features an interesting account of Jeff Donsky's visit to Przedbórz last fall, as well as Dolores Ring's extracts of 1810-1846 marriages from there. There is also a necrology from the Staszów Yizkor book by Steven Weiss and an article about Jack Goldfarb's annual visit to the town that might interest him.

Other extracts in this issue include Bogoria births (1826-47) and marriages (1826-1877) by Jerry Tepperman and Warren Blatt.

There is also a first-hand report of Marc Weinman's journey to Radom and a better understanding of Polish occupations in a treatise by Lauren Eisenberg Davis. And you will also find some very interesting letters and e-mail we've received during these past few months.

In this issue, too, we acknowledge the growing number of our members who have made monetary contributions to our research fund. The fund continues to grow, thanks to these people, allowing us to provide translations and an extra bit of research that we couldn't otherwise afford. We deeply cherish these contributions, as we also appreciate the many contributions in service made by so many of our members. It has been this effort that has allowed our SIG to pursue our attempts to make the Journal as outstanding and useful as possible.

Entrance to the city of Przedbórz

When my father, Gordon Donsky, died in Toronto in 1993, I had my first opportunity ever to visually examine what I thought at the time was his passport. An old and tattered Polish document, barely intact, its yellowed pages meant nothing more to me than any other relic of a past that the elders of my family usually discussed with contempt.

This passport however would be the only traceable link to my father's past that I had in my possession, when five years later, in September 1998, I found myself in the town of his birth, Przedbórz, Poland. Clearly, I was a man without a plan but I had one thing working in my favor. I was traveling with Bożena, a woman whose fluency in Polish and English and whose acute understanding of the nature of my mission had everything to do with ensuring its success.

At her suggestion, we stopped in at the 13th century church, one of the oldest I had seen to this point on my journey through Poland. I was somewhat surprised to see to what degree it dominates this town and its 4,500 inhabitants. Sadly, due to the time of day at which we arrived, we were unable to locate neither a priest nor a single worshiper with whom we could converse, so after a brief look through the interior we decided to drive on. The next logical place to start looking for information is the Town Hall, where we would have ended up next, had it not been for an impulsive urge to engage an old woman I noticed sitting at a nearby bus stop bench. Realizing she was in her eighties, I suddenly had the eerie feeling that this woman had been sitting at this bench for eternity, knowing full well that no bus would ever stop there. It was like this was her season ticket to a bleacher seat in the stadium that is Przedbórz, a spectator at the event that was the destruction of its ancient and storied Jewish community. The stoic expression on her face, which appeared frozen by time, changed dramatically when Bożena asked her if she had any recollection of the Dunski family who most certainly lived here during her youth. Somewhat excited by this strange encounter she informed us repeatedly that not only did she remember them but was aware of two Dunski brothers in their eighties who still lived in the town. She had obviously not made any distinctions between Jews and Catholics and I had no reason to enlighten her right there at a street corner in the center of town.

Without wasting any time, Bożena located the proper intersection and within five minutes we found ourselves at the entrance of a drab four-story gray building. The name on the door of the flat was "Dunski Czesław" and we were standing at Ulica Mostowa, in the center of Przedbórz. My heart began to race as we knocked on the door. I was certain that here I would discover something of great significance concerning my paternal ancestry. I was not disappointed. What followed was 12 hours of dialogue spanning two days and involving an endless sound loop of English to Polish to Polish and back to English for my consumption. It was indeed a Herculean effort by Bożena who had to manage most of it. Our conversations were interrupted only by the numerous field trips, which Mr. Dunski was kind enough to lead. A detailed account would be far too voluminous for the pages of this journal so, in the interest of brevity, I have chosen to share with you three encounters that forever will remain etched in my memory and they are described below.

I was given a guided tour of the Jewish cemetery accompanied by a lengthy eyewitness account of the murder, by shooting, of a substantial number of Jewish elders on Sept. 2 1939 on the second day of the German invasion of Poland. This day fell on a Saturday, the Sabbath, when most Jews were easily identified and assembled together in one place. Mr. Dunski claims to have a photographic recall of the entire event and attests to around 1,000 Jews being shot. Having been 25 years old at the time and presumably at the peak of his powers of observation, I have no reason whatsoever to doubt him. It is worthy to note that based on what I saw, his story proves out. There are three distinct Majdanek-like ditches, which like giant snakes seem to slither along two thirds of the cemetery's perimeter. A very moving revelation, when I first observed this, it literally took me several minutes to comprehend it. During the next hour or so I crawled about the cemetery floor, far beneath the canopies of the overgrown forest trying to discover and photograph as many gravestones and inscriptions as I could. Despite the overhanging foliage and the Hebrew inscription protruding from the earth. This, from a cemetery that could claim over a thousand stones prior to the German desecration. This, in a town that can trace its Jewish community back to the dawn of the 16th century. What happened to the rest of the stones, you may ask. I asked the same question and Mr. Dunski wasted no time in answering. Having claimed to witness the haulage of these gravestones, he took me right to them. Sadly, they lie overturned; ironically assuming the same position as the majority of Polish Jews would ultimately assume - face down in the ground - purposed only to pave the German barracks following the occupation.

Mass grave along the perimeter of the Przedbórz cemetery

We visited the Przedbórz town hall for some family record research on two separate occasions. The first was pleasant and constructive darkness, I found at least six or seven stones, some toppled on their side, some still erect but broken revealing in some cases only 7 or 8 inches of and we were assisted by two junior clerks who, after examining what I thought was my father's passport, began retrieving ledger after ledger as we hovered around them to view the handwritten entries. Following some intensive discourse in Polish, it was explained to me that what I really had in my hands was a hodgepodge of pages from several passports. These included the front cover and pages one and two of my grandmother Rivka Dunski and grandfather Szaja Emanuel Dunski's passports. It turned out my father was just a footnote in the lower section under children. He was eight years old at the time. I also had some pages from his brothers Benyamin and Moszek's passports. At last we had some defined parameters on which to search but after no less than ten ledgers were examined, I could not seem to match up any of the more than 20 Dunski records. I must admit as I reflect back on this opportunity, that I was foolish not to have done more research here before conducting this search. I was totally green. I had no idea at the time what I had in front of me. I knew that I simply wasn't giving this the proper attention it deserved. I vowed that if I could only have a second chance, I would absorb it like a sponge. After what seemed like an hour and a half, I was told by the clerk to return to the office two days later when the senior clerk would be available to assist me.

Determined to try again, I convinced Bożena to sacrifice along with me the extra traveling day that was not part of our original itinerary. She understood that this was probably as close as any Dunski family descendant had ever come and she unselfishly agreed. To be fair, Bożena had family commitments of her own in Zamość, about one day's journey to the east and I was included in them. On the morning of September 16, 1998 we arrived at the Przedbórz town hall for what turned out to be a most uncomfortable experience but what led to a miraculous encounter. The session lasted all of ten minutes when to my surprise the senior clerk told us he was already aware of what I was looking for and had already found the records of Benyamin Dunski and was certain he could find the rest. I was outwardly excited however after some heated exchange in Polish with Bożena, he informed us that he would neither retrieve nor photocopy anything and if we chose, we could leave him some money and he would have the records sent. My excitement turned to disappointment while we pleaded our case to no avail. He simply would not cooperate. Knowing full well that I would never again hear from him, I left him 50 złotys and my mailing address.

Feeling frustrated, we returned to Mr. Czesław Dunski's flat to report our findings. He had asked us to do this two days earlier before we parted company the first time. When we related the details of our search efforts to him, he responded by suggesting that we take a trip to visit a young man whose father had worked in the town hall up until his death in 1981. This man, he believed, could help us. We waited outside while Mr. Dunski went upstairs and explained the nature of this rather unique visit. He returned several minutes later to tell us that Jan was at work and would be returning in a couple of hours. I pleaded with Bożena to agree to wait and after she finally acquiesced, we spent the time visiting the old town center where inevitably we would encounter the old woman sitting on her bus stop bench as well as several other townsfolk who by now, all knew of our exploits.

When we returned to Jan's flat, we were kindly received and introduced to his family. What proceeded to befall my eyes was the richest exhibit of Przedbórz Judaica I could ever have dreamed of. There were photographs, documents, correspondence in Yiddish, pages and pages of Polish and German records, religious artifacts, books in Polish and more. It turns out that this man is a genuine intellectual who is obsessed with the history of the Przedbórz Jewish community, actually theorizing that he himself must have had Jewish bloodlines long ago and that this would explain why he was so consumed by the subject matter.

I will not attempt to itemize everything that I saw that evening, copies of most of which are now in my possession, however I would like to recount the moment Jan from Przedbórz uncovered to my utter amazement, the three parchment leaves of the Sefer Torah that most certainly came from the Przedbórz shul. Although terribly yellowed they were well preserved with a significant number of stitches still holding the leaves together. Jan claimed that his father had left him this remnant upon his death in 1981 and that he, although realizing it was a section of Torah, had not actually thought much more about it. Words cannot describe how I felt when I gazed upon this magnificent piece of religious history. As my hand touched it for the first time, I felt, for that brief moment as though I had established some deep spiritual connection with every Jewish soul that had ever been born in Przedbórz. It actually produced within me a physical sensation, which almost buckled my knees. I could hardly contain myself as the tears welled up in my eyes. I immediately urged Bożena to try to secure it at any cost explaining that while this artifact could be of no possible benefit to Jan, in the future could certainly be of great benefit to the descendants of Przedbórz Jews. Negotiations followed in Polish and to make a long story short I returned to Toronto with a piece of the Przedbórz Sefer! I also returned with many books and documents but that is another story.

There were many other highlights of my trip to Przedbórz, which were made possible by Mr. Dunski. He showed me where the Synagogue once stood, the location of the German bunkers in the forested high ground beyond Przedbórz and finally, the house where he is certain the Jewish Dunski family lived. Unfortunately this family was involved in the leather business which the official records we saw confirmed, and based on my own knowledge, my family had owned an ice and soda factory. At least this discovery made me aware of another possible branch of my lineage that was until now, unknown to anyone in my family.

As we traveled through Poland for the next ten days, we visited Kielce, Auschwitz, Lublin, Zamość, Majdanek, Sobibor and Belzec, all of which spelled disaster for the Jewish people. I could not help but notice the signs and graffiti of anti-Semitism that seemed to permeate the urban landscapes and in fact intensify the further east we headed. They were painted on the walls of military camps, institutions and sadly even on Jewish memorials and cemeteries. While it is true that some of the groups of youth I saw congregating in the town centers were clad in

Memorial of the Jewish cemetery in nearby Zamosc today

Nazi-like attire with shaved heads and hateful eyes, I want to emphasize, that these are not the only Poles who live in Poland today. I for one refuse to generalize to this extent. I encountered on my travels some exceptionally kind and scholarly individuals, without whose help and generosity I would never have acquired the information and documentation now in my possession. It is to those people, Mr. Czesław Dunski and his family, Jan from Przedbórz whom I still correspond with regularly, Bożena and her mother and friends in Zamość, that I wish to extend my heartfelt gratitude for all their time and kindness.

Before closing, I would like to share with you one final, rather curious observation. Although painfully aware of Mr. Dunski's Catholicism, as I watched him speak, I could not help but notice an uncanny resemblance to some of my own family's facial characteristics. The identical hair and eyes, very similar cheekbones and complexion bore an amazing likeness to at least three of the seven aunts and uncles I knew from Przedbórz as a boy. While I was no doubt struck by the moment, as I write about it in retrospect I can't seem to suppress my suspicions that this man's lineage and my own had in some strange way intersected a long, long time ago.

An overview of Jewish vital records in Russian Poland¹

Years	1808 - 1825	1826 - 1867	1868 - 1917	1918 - 1942
Where Recorded	Catholic Civil Transcripts	Separate Jewish registers
Language	Polish		Russian	Polish
Location of Registers	Records older than 100 years are kept in regional branches of the Polish State Archives. Many of these records have been microfilmed by the Mormons, usually up to around 1865 or later for some towns.		Records less than 100 years old are typically kept in each town's Civil Records Office (Urząd Stanu Cywilnego).

For other localities which are now part of Poland (e.g. former parts of Galicia, Prussian Poland, Grodno Gubernia), the record format, language, and periods covered are different.

Kin's Lost Gravestone Unearthed in Polish Town

by Jack Goldfarb

Jack Goldfarb, a freelance New York writer, is zealously dedicated to remembering a community of people he never met. These people were the 5000 Jewish residents of Staszów, his parents' ancestral town in south central Poland. Over 90% of them, including 35 of Goldfarb's relatives, perished in the Holocaust in World War II.

Goldfarb's self-appointed mission has taken him to Staszów sixteen times. With the help of sympathetic townspeople, he has erected a Holocaust memorial monument, affixed remembrance plaques to sites of former Jewish landmarks, and restored the ancient Jewish cemetery whose gravestones were carted off by the Nazis and used as paving blocks in Staszów's streets.

After the war, the town's mayor removed the gravestones and had them stored. With no Jews left in Staszów, the stones were eventually sold to a construction company and disappeared from the town forever.

Goldfarb's memorial "projects" have evoked poignant emotional experiences for him but nothing like the startling discovery he made in Staszów a few months ago.

He found his grandfather's tombstone.

He had received a letter from Israel written by one of the town's few Jewish survivors saying he believed there were several tombstones still lying in the courtyard of a house once used as a Gestapo Headquarters during the Nazi Occupation.

Arriving in Staszów in mid-November 1998, Goldfarb went directly to that house and was admitted to the courtyard by a schoolteacher tenant. Leaning against a wall was a 4-foot high granite headstone with clearly inscribed Hebrew lettering. It bore the name "Itzchak Josef ben Yehudah Leibush HaCohen. Died in 1933." The name and date of death positively identified it as that of Goldfarb's paternal grandfather.

The schoolteacher explained that the stone had been dug up two years ago to install a gas line. Too heavy to move further, the gravestone was left resting against the wall. Because it had lain in sandy soil face down since 55 years ago (when the Germans were in Staszów), the inscription, even its red coloring, remained clearly visible.

Jack Goldfarb immediately arranged for workmen to transport the stone back to the Jewish cemetery, where it was wrapped in thick plastic, to be re-erected this spring under a tall acacia tree.

"I knew from my father that Grandpa Itzchak Josef was a six footer," says Goldfarb, "a pious soul who carved smoking pipes for a living and died in his 88th year. His stone confirms it all: 'Here lies a respected patriarch who walked in the paths of God, and derived pleasure from the work of his hands. May his memory be a blessing.' "

Goldfarb also swears that in his ten days in Poland last November, he never saw the sun once, except when his grandfather's stone was placed back on the cemetery earth. Inexplicably the gray overcast parted, a swath of blue sky appeared, and Staszów was bathed in sunlight.

19th Century Occupations

by Lauren B. Eisenberg Davis

Special thanks to Warren Blatt for providing the Sobków extracts for this study.

An understanding of the common occupations in 19th century Russian Poland gives us a better appreciation of the way of life of our ancestors. A survey of fathers on birth records in Przytyk, Radom, Sobków and Wolańów for the years 1826 through 1835 yields an interesting distribution of occupations.

² While the literal translation of duchowny is 'of spirit', Alexander Beider suggests that it is a more specific occupation than 'clergyman.' He says, "The historian Raphael Mahler ... suggested that a duchowny might be a member of Bet Din (rabbinical court). In one source (Włodawa's records) I've seen the expression starszy duchowny (starszy meaning top or elder) and this term fits to At Bet Din, the head of the rabbinical court."

³ "consumables" defined as food and alcohol.

⁴ Alexander Beider suggests that kolatka indicates a specific Jewish occupation, "one who calls people to a synagogue."

The above tallies were computed by counting a single person in a profession only once. However, it is important to note that many men worked at various jobs over time. Consequently, some are counted for more than one job, either because they held different jobs at different times, or because multiple occupation terms held the same meaning for them. The occupations are listed both in English (rough translation) and the original Polish.

Multiple Occupations

The following lists itemize overlapping occupations. Some of these instances were multiple jobs which were held by the same person over time, others simply different terms for similar occupations used interchangeably by the original clerks.

⁷ propinacja means "tap-room." Again, Alexander Beider suggests that this term is larger than bar-man, rather someone who has the authorization to sell/dispense alcoholic drinks.

Ambiguous Definitions

It is difficult to determine the exact nature of several of the occupations in the context of nineteenth century life, despite having dictionary definitions. A few examples are:

- handlarz: The dictionary definition is peddler, which is how it appears in the article "Occupation Definitions" (I:1). However, there is some evidence to support the notion that this is a tradesman, a professional, rather than a simple street peddler.
- szpekulant: This term is often defined as money-lender. Again, there is some speculation that this occupation is really a merchant, as money lending was not a Jewish occupation in Eastern Europe.

- arędarz: This occupation is defined as either an innkeeper or a tenant / leaseholder. In Turobin (Lublin gubernia), the term is used interchangeably with szynkarz, which is an innkeeper, while in other towns, they are used as separate occupations. According to Alexander Beider: "The term arędarz is larger than szynkarz. All szynkarz were arędarz because Jewish innkeepers were tenants of their inns. Jewish tenancy was mostly represented by inn tenancy, and, therefore, most arędarz were indeed szynkarz. There were, however, other leaseholders than innkeepers: tenants of brewery, of mills, of roads / bridges, etc."
- mączarz: The definition of this occupation is flour dealer, but in Radom, the term is also used to mean miller, the same as młynarz. Alexander Beider noted that "Some millers were dealers in flour as well. Thus certain mączarz were millers. Generally speaking, the term mączarz is undoubtedly pointing to dealers in flour."

Additionally, the distinction between some occupations is unclear, as noted above. The largest contributor to this situation is for men involved in trade:

In Radom and Chęciny, there was significant overlap between handlarz (peddler), kramarz (stall-keeper or shop keeper) and kupiec (merchant). In Krasnystaw (Lublin gubernia), many of the handlarz were also szpekulant. Other towns showed no overlap at all. Again, Alexander Beider said, "Handlarz is a general term (shopkeeper and tradesman). Handlarz can be kramarz or kupiec. Kramarz is the keeper of a small shop. Kupiec is merchant, the keeper of a large shop. Since the distinction between small and large is subjective, some kupiec could be designated as kramarz in other documents. Also, some kramarz can be richer at some stages of their life and, therefore, they become kupiec."

It is easy to understand that men of many occupations worked as wyrobnik at some point. When work was not available in their normal occupation, it was necessary to earn a living by whatever means they could. For example, teaching did not always bring in enough money for self-support; hence often a second occupation was necessary.

Several occupations are undefined. Paht and paktkarz both appeared in Przytyk only. The possibility exists that they are abbreviations and misspellings of pachciarz, which is a fairly common occupation in the town.

Confusion also arises regarding occupation words that look similar to each other. Rzeżak is mohel, while rzeźnik is butcher or shochet. If a man is sometimes identified as a rzeżak, and other times as a rzeźnik, does he hold both positions, or is one a clerical error between similar words?

Why is żebrak (beggar) an occupation? Looking at Fiddler on the Roof, we all remember Nachum, the beggar, at the beginning of the movie. Yet, an excerpt from The Book of Jewish Belief (Louis Jacobs, West Orange, New Jersey: Behrman House, Inc., 1984) sheds light on another possibility.

"In prewar Poland, young married men, who were supported by their fathers-in-law so that they might study the Torah without financial worries, spent some time each week begging at doors, not for themselves but for the poor."

Were these people begging for themselves or for tzedakah?

For comparative purposes, it is useful to divide the occupations found in these towns into categories.

Occupation Distribution by Category

Occupations	Przytyk	Radom	Sobków	Wolanów
Business: faktor, handel garnkarz, handlarz, kramarz, kupiec, przekupnik, przemysł, solarz, szynkarz soli, szynkarz tronków, targownik	37%	31%	28%	7%
Artisan: drukarz, garnkarz, introligator, muzykant, mydlarz, szklarz, tapicer, waciarz, złotnik	2%	6%	9%	-
Unskilled: wyrobnik	14%	8%	25%	20%
Food occupations: mączarz, młynarz, piekarz, rolnik, rzeźnik	7%	17%	6%	6%
Education: bokalarz, belfer	8%	3%	3%	7%
Medical: cyrulik, lekarz	-	1%	1%	2%
Construction: blacharz, stolarz, tokarz, zamkarz	2%	2%	-	-

Tenancy: arędarz, dzierzawca konsumpcja, dzierzawca, karczmarz, pachciarz, szynkarz, właściciel	7%	5%	4%	2%
Other: furman, kołatka, kupczyk, licherant, manipulant, piezlarz, pisarz, propinotor, żebrok	1%	5%	9%	20%

Some of the overlap of multiple occupations for a single individual can be reduced by only counting one occupation in a specific work category above for unique individuals. For example:

- arędarz / szynkarz
- kupiec / handlarz
- przekupnik / handlarz
- szewc / krawiec
- handlarz / kramarz

- szynkarz soli / handlarz
- kramarz / kupiec
- mączarz / piekarz
- szynkarz / pachciarz
- rabin / duchowny

Additionally, the handel garnkarz / garnkarz can be considered an artisan – he makes pottery and sells it.

HAS SANDOMIERZ BACKGROUND, INFO

My father was born in Sandomierz in 1890 and came to the states by himself in 1906, probably sent by his parents to avoid his being drafted into the Russian army during the Sino-Russian war. During the first world war, he was in the U.S. army in France. After the war he tried to get a furlough to visit his family, but was not able to do so. He never did see his parents after he left home (they died before the second war).

What I have is a brief note from his mother in response to his inquiry through the Jewish Welfare Board as to their well being after WWI. This note was sent to him while he was still in France with the army. Below is a copy with the translation.

I also have an outline of the Jewish history of Sandomierz which was obtained by a cousin in Israel from an agency there. I might mention that through the Journal I have been in contact with a lady in Illinois whose father was born in Sandomierz and is trying to locate family.

The Jewish name for Sandomierz was Zosmer. An organization was founded in 1905 and my father was an early member. The name is Zosmer Young Mens Benevolent Society. I believe they are still in existence. They were in 1986 when my mother passed away. If you are interested in contacting them, please let me know and I will try to locate the secretary. They have a cemetery plot in Mt. Hebron Cemetery, Flushing, NY.

Memo received by Leonard Weisbort's father from the Jewish Welfare Board that translates to: "Dearest son S. Weisbrot! Thank God we are all well. We are faring poorly, with no means of support. Write to us often, letters about your health, how you are faring personally.

NEW POLISH PROVINCES

Please see the following web site for maps of the 16 new Polish provinces that came into effect 1 Jan 1999, replacing the previous decentralized provincial boundaries of 1975
<http://www.rootsweb.com/~polwgg/polandgen.html>

11. Lubelskie (Lublin)
12. Dolnośląskie (Lower Silesia)
13. Opolskie (Opole)
14. Śląskie (Silesia)
15. Małopolskie (Little Poland)
16. Podkarpackie (Subcarpathia)

On first glance, the more detailed provincial maps suggest preservation of urban and district (powiat) boundaries

1. Zachodniopomorskie (West Pomerania)
2. Pomorskie (Pomerania)
3. Warmińsko-Mazurskie
4. Podlaskie
5. Lubuskie
6. Wielkopolskie (Great Poland)
7. Kujawsko-Pomorskie
8. Łódzkie (Łódź)
9. Mazowieckie (Mazovia-Warsaw-Radom)
10. Świętokrzyskie (Kielce-Sandomierz)

The names of some of the provinces echo historical regions like those of the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth (1300s-1700s).

See the map in the new English translation of the book: Jewish Autonomy in Poland and Lithuania Until 1646 (5408), by Professor Shmuel A. Arthur Cygielman, Ben-Gurion Univ., Beersheba, Israel, publ. The Zalman Shazar Center, Jerusalem 1997

The area of the former Kielce and Radom gubernias are today mostly in the province of Swietokrzyskie, but with the southwest section (Olkusz, Miechów) now in the Małopolski province, the northwest section (Opoczno, Przedbórz) now in the Łódz province, and the northeast section (Radom, Przysucha, Kozienice, Szydłowiec, Ilża, Zwolen) in Mazowieckie province. WILL TRANSLATE, DUTCH, GERMAN AND FRENCH, LEARNING YIDDISH

I would like to volunteer to do something for the group. I don't have a computer, but I may have access to one soon. Also, I have lots of languages, so I can translate (volunteer or paid) either specific research material for the Journal or letters and documents of group members.

Perhaps by mailing me a photocopy of the document until I get access to fax. I just learned to read Yiddish (I already understand it). I can read print and am now working on handwriting with the hope of doing translations professionally. My other languages that I am fairly competent in are Dutch, German and French. I read, write and speak these. If you think of something for me to do, let me know.

JEWISH RECORDS DISCOVERED FOR KSIAZ WIELKI

I have been using the JewishGen link to the LDS films and have been viewing a lot of them in our area of concern; specifically, my family towns.

Recently I went through the films for the town of Ksiaz-Wielki. The LDS had them listed as church records (which is why I could not find a listing on the Internet data), but in reviewing them I noted Hebrew writing as a countersignature to the Polish name. I can only assume that the Jews entering the town had no civic office to register and used the church. I found numerous names of my family.

I informed LDS of this and they were appreciative. I then used their computer to find info about the town of Miechow which is also listed as church records (we have no listing in JewishGen or the LDS films for this town because, I think, they are not listed as church records) and I will be reviewing them to verify as soon as I get my hands on them.

For your interest and comments.

<martin.brandon@cwix.com>

You have made a truly remarkable discovery here. To investigate and verify, I ordered the Ksiaz Wielki microfilms at my local LDS Family History Center. These are indeed Jewish registers, mis-catalogued. The last film item on LDS microfilm #733,047 contains Jewish births, 1826-1846; and microfilm #753,048 contains births 1847-1865, marriages 1847-1865, and deaths 1826-1865.

The register books had original title pages which read "Akta Stanu Cywilnego Wyznania Niechrzescianski", meaning "Civil registration of non-Christians", the Kraków archives, where these books were microfilmed, labelled them as only "Civil Registration"; and hence the LDS catalogued them as "Church Records". There are likely other mis-catalogued treasures waiting to be discovered in the LDS catalog. Another K-R SIG member discovered mis-catalogued Jewish records for Opoczno (see II:4, page 16).

This is a real find. According to Polish State Archives inventories, there are no Jewish vital records for Ksiaz Wielki until 1882. These records are not listed in the inventories in Miriam Weiner's book "Jewish Roots in Poland".

Although Ksiaz Wielki had a very small Jewish population (729 in 1897, 852 in 1921) these microfilms should be of interest to a wider audience. These registers appear to also include registrations for Slomniki. I scanned through some of the marriage registrations, and there is a very high percentage of out-of-town brides and grooms. About 75% of all marriages have a partner from another town. A wide range of localities is represented, covering all of Kielce gubernia, and beyond. There are many partners from Wodzislaw, Dzialoszyce, Pinczow, Slomniki, Wolbrom, and Bedzin; a handful from Pilica, Zarnow, Szczekociny, Miechow, Checiny and Staszow. There are also brides and grooms from Klimontow, Olkusz, Ostrowiec, Kromolow, Nowy Korczyn, Chmielnik, Krakow, Radoszyce, Zarki, Lopuszno and Radom.

Hopefully some ambitious member will start a project to extract this valuable data. - WB

WELSHMAN SEEKS HELP FOR FRIEND IN FINDING CHMIELNIK MOTHER'S FAMILY

Greeting from Wales!

Please excuse me if I am wasting your time, but this is posted in great hopes of some positive result. I have a friend whose mother came from Poland in 1938. They are Jewish people.

My friend's mother was here in UK when the borders closed and later, as far as is known, her entire family perished in the Holocaust during the Second World War. Many searches have been made of newspapers and books and recently this lady made a visit to her homeland for the first time since she came here - but still the search continues.

The family names are: ZAID, ROTTER. The town is Chmielnik.

If these names are familiar or if anyone can shed any light whatsoever that might be helpful, my friends, and I, would be most grateful. Thank you.

ISRAEL WEB PAGE HOST RECOMMENDS BRAZILIAN SURVIVOR USE K-R SIG

The following message was received at Ada Holtzman's Website in Israel, followed by her reply:

"The Almighty bless you. I am a survivor from Belgium where I was hidden by Christians for two years and living in Brazil since 1950. My mother had a brother Yakov Kasza, born in Busko Zdroj near Kielce who during the Polish-Russian Independence War in 1920 went on the Russian side and lost contact with the family who otherwise was killed by the Nazis. Perhaps did he survive and now with the emigration to Israel, are there some descendants?

*Samuel Rosenberg

"Dear Samuel,

I thank you for visiting my web page and sending your message. I had no time to reply to you earlier.

There is a lot of information and help how to locate missing relatives from the Holocaust. But don't have too many illusions... We know very well what happened there. It is a tragedy which the mind cannot grasp. You were among the very fortunate few to survive.

There is a strong Kielce Radom SIG and they publish newsletters and various publications. Maybe you should contact them regarding your research? I e-mail this message to the SIG coordinator, Gene Starn, who hopefully will give you more details as how to subscribe and how much it costs. Their journal contains lots of genealogical and historical information, very important to the people from this region who wish to explore their roots.

Shalom!

OPOCZNO AND KONSKIE INDEXES ONLINE

I am happy to announce that more than 3440 translated BMD records from Opoczno covering 1826-1847 and more than 2420 BMD translated records from Konskie covering 1826-1845 are available online. Not paternal shtetls, and I volunteered to be the coordinator for both.

Thanks to everybody who helped and assisted, especially Don Orenbuch who made some very good copies for us in his local LDS FHC and my cousin Marshall Zissman, who started it all. We will go on with these projects, translating further indexes/years in the near future. I am still looking for volunteers to help us do the Russian years of both towns (1868-1887) since my knowledge of this language is very poor indeed. I would like to thank Michael Tobias for his wonderful work making the raw data translated available online, and both Hadassah Lipsius and Stanley Diamond who encouraged me.

A Journey to Radom

Marc Weinman

My grandparents and their generation crossed over into a New World when they emigrated from their ancestral town of Radom, leaving their old lives and most of their families behind to start new ones in America. The brevity of it overwhelms me. They couldn't have known then that were they to return to the place of their birth today, they probably wouldn't recognize it. And they couldn't have known that they would never again see their families. Six decades and three generations later, I crossed back over that threshold in earnest search for this 'Old World' home they left behind; looking for answers of a flourishing past that never survived long enough to afford me a glimpse into its present. I've been fortunate enough to budget travel off and on for the last few years, but no independent journeys have been as emotional and personally rewarding as the trip I made to Eastern Europe in the fall of 1996, when I visited Radom and the ancestral towns and villages around it where my father's family lived before WWII.

My genealogical interest was first sparked as a very curious 13-year-old trying to discover the personal history of a family I knew very little about. It was shortly after becoming a Bar Mitzvah that I started questioning my grandparents as to what life was like for them growing up as a child my age. Soon after, adolescence quickly set in and took precedence over everything, and it wasn't until several years later that my genealogical interests returned. In 1995, I traveled through Israel and made it a point to visit the archives of Yad Vashem. Within 15 minutes of perusing through source material, I came across a microfiched copy of an application for a Nazi Jewish ID Card by my great-grandfather, Szlama Berek Finkielsztejn, residing at ulica Bozniczna 13, Radom, on March 15th, 1941. Here I was, sitting at a fiche reader in Jerusalem, staring at the photograph of my grandmother's father looking back at me, a man I knew little of and of whom my grandmother never spoke. The resemblances between father and daughter were striking. Shortly before leaving Israel, I also discovered members of a branch of the family who had emigrated there from Argentina, and slightly changed the spelling of our surname.

Needless to say, after the successes of that trip, my parents also caught the bug, and did 'light' research on my behalf while I continued my travels through the Middle East and Europe, eventually settling down in London. They called family members in Detroit and Toronto to see what unknown secrets they could discover. They contacted the Radomer Aid Societies of those cities to collect more statistical information. And most importantly, they got themselves connected online, and learned how to 'surf' the web for genealogical resources. Meanwhile, I began to sift through information they periodically relayed back to me, putting bits and pieces together as if in a giant jigsaw puzzle. When I finally returned to Los Angeles in the spring of 1996, the groundwork had been laid. It was now time to get to business for some serious research and I chose to spend a few months devoted to genealogy. A big boost came when I hooked up with Dr. Lowell Ackerman, via the JewishGen Family Finder (JGFF), who was also researching family from Radom and surrounding areas, and I got a first-hand lesson in extracting information from Polish vital records in Polish and Cyrillic. Only later was I to discover that both our families were related from a link that went back seven generations!

It was in this pretext that I thus chose to travel to Eastern Europe in the autumn of that year. I traveled to Radom for the first time, in an effort to connect the old with the new, the vague with the concrete, the past with the future, the memories with reality. While there, I conducted on-site research in the State Archives to find yet more answers to a family's past I still knew very little about. In the context of several other former Eastern Bloc countries I visited, Poland made for fairly easy travel. It has survived the post-communist era well, and tourism is now booming there as a result. Getting around is painless, and the rail network is efficient and inexpensive. Smaller towns and villages not serviced by rail are made up with bus service. After spending a few days around Warsaw, I took a train to Radom, about an hour and a half south. Through verdant, plowed farmland and rolling hills of green and bright yellow, the rural landscape couldn't have looked much different when my ancestors last walked it only 55 years ago. I had been anticipating this very ride for months, unconsciously probably years, and anxious excitement began to build as I neared Radom. Upon arrival, I exited the train station, and found my way through the city by foot, backpack in tow. I found the youth hostel in the basement of an elementary school, and this would be my home for the next intriguing month. So my physical search had lead me here to Radom, a present-day provincial and unassuming city. How peculiar I felt being a resident in this unfamiliar town my grandparents once made their residence. From experience, I've tried to travel without expectations, but nothing could have prepared me for what I found, or more accurately, what I didn't find here.

From a genealogical perspective, my visit was a complete success. The Polish State Archive system has its main office on ulica Dluga in Warsaw. Before any personal research can be done, you must fill out a permit stating the purpose of your research and which branches you plan to conduct research at. This is a tedious, but simple process (bring your Polish-English dictionary), which can also be done in advance by mail. The permit is then forwarded to each of the archives specified, so they are expecting you whence you arrive. In the interest of time, upon arrival in Radom the following day, I hand delivered the permit to the State Archives located on the old Town Square (Rynek). A goldmine of genealogical information is to be found here, and unlike nightmarish stories I've heard from other genealogists, the Director, Mr. Kazimierz Jaroszek, Sebastian, Barbara and the rest of his staff were surprisingly accommodating and extremely helpful. From what I gathered, the staff also seemed very eager and good at following through with mail requests as well.

I had learned to extract information from vital records microfilmed by the LDS, but you can imagine the excitement when you have the original 150 year-old registry in front of you. It is amazing how these heavy books have withstood time; oversized and bound, with brittle pages and yellowing ink. They are unfortunately deteriorating rapidly, and one can only hope that the Mormons will be able to continue their process of filming these records so their content can be preserved once these books are gone. As I already had information on records that the LDS had filmed to 1876, I thus concentrated my efforts on the Cyrillic records from then to 1896. Radom is the capital city of its province, so many records for outlying towns and villages are also kept there, and I was able to research limited years for family members who had also lived in Zwolen, Ilza, and Wierzbica as well. I finally discovered the truth that no one in our family believed up to this point! My grandfather, Moshe Pinchas Wajnman, was in fact first cousin to my grandmother, Fejga Finkelsztejn. His father was the brother of her mother! I also found the branch relations of my relatives in Argentina, descendants of my great-grandfather's brother Elias Wajnman, who had immigrated to Buenos Aires before WWI to avoid the draft. Day in and day out, from opening to close, I sat and perused everything the staff could throw my way, always eager for more. To my delight, they continuously obliged me by bringing out new material I never new existed: the originals for the Nazi Jewish ID Card Applications were there, as were other ghetto records, Tenant Registries, Jewish Voter Registrations, even Yiddish Dailies. I knew that my one month here would not be enough time. A journalist doing research there became interested in my quest, and I agreed to give him an interview, which he published in the local gazette, in exchange for photographs of the ghetto during WWII, which I photographed using a macro lens.

Vital records less than 100 years old are kept in the city's Civil Records Office (Urząd Stanu Cywilnego) on ulica Moniuszki. They end at 1940. However, unlike the State Archives Office, the clerks here do not allow open access to these later records due to privacy laws. In order to get information, you must request a specific name of a family member and a specific time period to look for them. The clerks then conduct the research themselves (if they so choose) and type the findings on a notarized extraction document for a fee. In 1996, each document was 10 złoty (about $3). Initially, the clerks were not very helpful, inquiring as to why I was researching people with surnames different from my own. Only after days of persistence and seeing my cheery face were they willing to delve a little deeper in the books to locate lost family members, looking through several years to find other children from same marriages, etc. My visit was cut short before the Civil Records Office had finished their research for me, and they promised they would send me the extracted documents by mail. They followed through, and my parents received them at home a few weeks later. I would imagine that being there to request in-person seemed to make a difference, as I've heard varying accounts of results by researchers who have requested information from the USC office by mail.

The State Archives closed at a bureaucratic 3:00pm every afternoon, leaving me with ample time to explore Radom and its surrounds, a place that has always seemed frozen to me in black and white. And even after having been there, I think it always will be, if only because such an extraordinary journey had lead me to such an unextraordinary place. Radom today holds no surprises. But its secrets elude me, shrouded forever in time. It is a place on a map where time has managed to hide its history so well that the young generation growing up there knows shamefully little of it. On a bus, I befriended a dentist in his mid-twenties who was quick to point out that I was the first Jew he had ever met. On a visit to Wierzbica, a tiny farming hamlet about 10 miles south of Radom where my grandmother was born, I questioned several different people as to the whereabouts of the Jewish cemetery. They all pointed me to the same small clump of trees on the edge of a field. There were no stones or signs, just the remnants of a wall surrounding trees and overgrown weeds. And again, when I visited Ilża, birthplace of my grandfather, the supposed cemetery site was even less conspicuous as a forest, leaving no clues to its previous existence. In Radom, the Jewish cemetery is more clearly marked, on the outskirts of town. Fenced in and kept locked, it is sadly now an overgrown field of ornate gravestones, many broken in pieces, stacked on top of each other in piles. The main synagogue was one of the first structures to be destroyed during the war, and the site on ulica Bozniczna is today a plot with three trees and a small memorial erected to victims of the Holocaust.

I came here in search of my grandparents' Old World, only to find that it no longer exists. The incomprehensible horrors of WWII did good to ensure that Radom's illustrious Jewish history was stopped dead in its tracks, and there's scant little reminder of it today. On Plac Stare Miasto, a Star of David is engraved into the porch of an old wooden house, a small symbol to a more vibrant, culturally rich and creative time when every third person in this city was Jewish. Today, exactly one Jew remains. Those old enough to remember here don't seem to want to, those too young to know probably never will. My grandmother's last residence on ulica Rwancka is still here, but to her, Radom today must seem a strange place from the hometown she grew up in. A heritage of faded memories and so much sorrow and pain; of a family murdered, and a community lost. Destroyed. Only 55 years later, I'm three generations removed, yet I have no tears to shed for a past I know too little of. And other than a history of vagueness, there is no personal attachment for me to grasp of this city my family once called home.

What personal insight and soul-searching have I fulfilled by coming to this physical place to tread in the steps of my ancestors? It's an extremely eerie and unusual feeling coming back to a place you've never been before. Yet my visit was certainly not in vain. The rapidly advancing Red Army was too late to reverse the tragic fate of Radom's Jewish community, but their actions did help save many of the records now stored in Radom's branch of the State Archives for all to see. These records are virtual histories transcribed on paper. They chronicle the joys, jubilations and griefs of this entire lost community. And this information has fortunately endured the obstacles of time, enabling me to view a fractional, yet authentic glimpse into a personal past of the family name I bear; memories of my own blood otherwise forgotten. To my relatives who never lived long enough for me to know: your lives will forever be interwoven into the chapters of our family's past. History's tragic course of events could do nothing to spite them, and you will never be forgotten. By coming to Radom, I bridged a gap I never thought I would cross. As a genealogist, a journey back to my ancestral towns was something I was compelled to do as part of an ever-insatiable appetite for personal knowledge and gratification that I hope will never cease. Did I find what I came in search of? I'll probably never know. But I'm satisfied with the journey, and the effort put into it. I'll return to Radom someday to continue where I left off.

Necrology from Sefer Staszow

Transliterated by Steven Weiss

This is a transliteration of the names in the necrology from Sefer Staszow (The Staszow book), Edited by Elhanan Erlich. (Tel Aviv, Former Residents of Staszow in Israel and in the Diaspora, 1962). 690 pages in Hebrew, Yiddish and English.

My paternal grandmother was born in Staszów (Stashov) in 1900. Her Yiddish maiden name was Alta Pessel Shulmeister, later changed to Shulman. She lived in Staszów until the age of 11, when she moved with her family to Canada and eventually to Detroit. I have transliterated the necrology from the Staszów yizkor book in order to help others involved in Staszów research.

The Staszów yizkor book was published in Israel in 1962. A list of families killed in the Holocaust can be found on pages 212-222. I have copied the list exactly, transliterating the names from Yiddish. No relationship designations were used in the original list. The wife's name, when known, follows the name of the head of the household and then is followed by the names of the children. Often the wife's name is unknown in which case "wife" appears followed by the names of the children. I do not know how the list was compiled. Professor Barry Strauss, who is writing a book on his Staszów family, informs me that his Stroweis family is not listed, so the list to be sure is not complete. Several chapters in the yizkor book were written in English and are online at the JewishGen Yizkor Book web site as is this necrology at <<http://www.jewishgen.org/yizkor>>.

Extract Data in this Issue

Przedbórz	Marriages 1810-1846	Dolores Lee Ring
Bogoria	Births 1826-1847	Jerry Tepperman
Bogoria	Marriages 1826-1877	Warren Blatt

The vital record extracts for this issue are 1810-1846 Przedbórz marriages, and 1826-1847 births and 1826-1877 mariages for Bogoria. This data has been extracted from the civil registration records in possession of the Polish State Archives, and microfilmed by the Church of Jesus Christ Latter-day Saints (LDS). These extractions include information derived directly from the original registrations on the following LDS microfilms:

- #0,719,098 Przedbórz 1810-1816 (RC)
- #0,719,099 Przedbórz 1817-1825 (RC)
- #0,719,103 Przedbórz 1826-1834
- #0,719,104 Przedbórz 1835-1846
- #0,813,072 Bogoria 1826-1847
- #0,588,927 Bogoria 1848-1865
- #1,199,823 Bogoria 1866-1877

Przedbórz

This issue contains a large set of extracts of Jewish marriages recorded in Przedbórz, from 1810 to 1846. Przedbórz had a large Jewish community (1897 Jewish population: 4,089). Before WWI, Przedbórz was located in Końskie powiat (district) of Radom gubernia, near the border with Piotrków gubernia.

There are seven additional microfilms of Przedbórz Jewish vital records, covering 1847-1886. From 1808 through 1825, the Jewish vital statistic events were recorded in the Roman Catholic civil registry throughout the Duchy of Warsaw and then the Kingdom of Poland. Included in the extracts in this issue are Jewish marriages recorded in the Roman Catholic civil register transcripts of Przedbórz, 1810-1825.

Several abbreviations are used in the Przedbórz marriage extracts. A blank space or hyphen indicates that information is missing in the original document. A question mark denotes illegible information. A "P" in the Residence column indicates Przedbórz; "wies" means village; "D" is district (powiat); "(w)" is widow(er); "(mn)" is maiden name of the bride, if it is not her first marriage; "(d)" is deceased.

Bogoria

This issue also contains extracts of Jewish birth and marriage records from Bogoria, a small town in Sandomierz powiat (district) of Radom gubernia. The Kielce-Radom SIG Journal has previously published extracts of the 1848-1860 Bogoria births in II:3.

Despite the fact the Bogoria was a very small town (1897 Jewish population: 575), these extracts should be of interest to a much wider audience, because of the high percentage of inter-town marriages. There are marriage partners from Chmielnik (4), Działoszyce (1), Iwaniska (13), Klimontów (24), Kurozwęki (2), Łagów (3), Nowy Korczyn (1), Oleśnica (2), Opatów (25), Ostrowiec (8), Ożarów (1), Pacanów (1), Pińczów (2), Połaniec (3), Raków (11), Sandomierz (4), Słupia Nowa (1), Staszów (17), Stopnica (4), Szydlów (2), Tarłów (1), Zawichost (1), and dozens of local villages.

Additional information on maiden names and patronymics has been derived by the authors and editor from an analysis of this and other data from these towns, as well as records from surrounding towns, tracking families over an extended period of time. All conjectural information is noted in square brackets [], to differentiate from the data that appears in the original records. The conjectures do not appear in the record itself.

Caution

These extracts are intended to assist the researcher in selecting records that may be of use for further study. There may be errors in interpretation due to the uneven quality of legibility of the writing, the microfilming and the condition of the microfilm itself, in addition to errors and decay affecting the original record books. As always, it is prudent for the researcher, when using secondary source data such as this work, to examine the primary source data for final verification. It is always best for the genealogist to view the actual records pertaining to his/her family to verify the interpretation, and glean additional facts.

As always, without making a study of the rest of the records, it is sometimes difficult to tell the difference between a patronymic and a surname derived from a patronymic. Best guesses have been made here, but readers interested in these towns should do their own research and draw their own conclusions.

* The italicized name appears in the Hebrew signature only (1833 # 5).

 The word blank indicates a space left on the original record where one would normally expect to find the name of the child. (1828 #3, 1832 # 4, 1833 # 1).

 In the index at the end of the year the family name is listed as KRYM but he seems to have been only present as a witness. The widow was alone and apparently from another town in a different area but gave birth in Bogoria. (1840 # 26).

? difficult to read.

^ Twins (1842 # 2).

! Listed in the index under the name of Mortka Berlin, the grandfather, 45 years of age. (1841 # 13, 1840 # 16).

(m)/(f) Indicates male or female, where it is not clear from the name.
