... but first a word from our coordinator

It has been a tumultuous few months since our last periodical. Lauren B. Eisenberg Davis, one of the primary founders of our group, and the person who so ably was in charge of research projects at the SIG, had to step down from her responsibilities because of a serious illness in her family and other personal matters.

I remember that first meeting in Boston during the closing Friday morning hours of the Summer Seminar. She had called a "birds of a feather" meeting for all those genealogists interested in forming a special interest group focusing on the Kielce and Radom gubernias of Poland. With a fatigued Warren Blatt by her side (he was just completing a grueling few months chairing one of the most successful national Jewish genealogy seminars ever held), Lauren combed the dozen or so attendees for their degree of interest. I entered the picture only when it seemed her efforts to get the SIG going would fail because no one had volunteered to coordinate her efforts.

From my viewpoint it was Lauren and Warren who have been the kingpins of our organization. They had a hand in all but a few of the items that appeared in those early issues of our Journal. They either authored the noteworthy articles, or directed others in the work.. The page after page of extractions came from their research, or their pointing the way for others.

I, too, will be leaving as coordinator of the SIG at year's end. For me this was a temporary assignment that has played havoc with my personal affairs and well being.

Which is why you found that urgent letter accompanying this issue. There is only so much one person can do -- and as able and capable as he is, Warren Blatt can not do it alone. He needs your help. He has vowed that unless he gets a positive response quickly, the next issue will be the SIG's last, and the Kielce-Radom SIG will cease to operate as it does now.

Please read the letter carefully and volunteer to take over one of the many necessary tasks involved to keep the SIG going. If you have any questions about any of the 'jobs' please contact me.

But this issue again reflects the high standards established by both Warren and Lauren. Featured are 48 pages of extracts from the vital records revealed from the Mormon microfilms of Pinczów, Klimontów and Chmielnik. You will also find an interesting article about the inventory in the Sandomierz Archives, a translated article about the Klimontów synagogue, and a necrology from the Opatów Yizkor book..

So read on ... but don't forget that important enclosed letter.

Polish State Archives in Sandomierz

Warren Blatt

Below is an inventory of Jewish records held by the Polish State Archives in Sandomierz, obtained from a researcher who visited the archives in Poland. The Sandomierz archives is one of the four branches archives of the Polish State Archives in Kielce along with the archives in Jędrzejów, Pińczów, and Starachowice. The Sandomierz archives is the one branch of the Kielce archives not contained within the Kielce Archives' 1993 catalog (see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal I:2, pages 3-7); they last published an inventory in 1979.

Housed in the former synagogue, the State Archives branch in Sandomierz (Archiwum Państwowe Oddział w Sandomierzu) is located at #4 ulica Żydowska, 27-600 Sandomierz, Poland. Telephone 832-25-09. Among its holdings are Jewish vital records for several towns formerly in southern Radom and western Lublin gubernias.

The LDS have microfilmed most of these records, through the mid-1880s (see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal, I:1, pages 6-7). To obtain copies of the later records (mid-1880s to late 1890s), you can write to the main archives in Warsaw, who will forward your request to the branch archives in Sandomierz (see "Vital Records in Poland - A Primer" in Kielce-Radom SIG Journal I:2, pages 3-7).

This inventory can be compared with that in Miriam Weiner's Jewish Roots in Poland: Pages from the Past and Archival Inventories (see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal II:2, pages 21-24), pages 354-355. Miriam Weiner's inventory also includes non-vital records, which this inventory does not. However, the inventory below contains a few more details on gaps in the records, extends a few additional years into the 1890s, and contains information about "marriage supplement" records.

In addition to birth, marriage and death registrations, the Sandomierz archives also has "marriage supplements" for a few towns. These are indicated in the inventory below with an "S". These "marriage supplements" or "marriage proofs", known as "dowody" or "alegata" or "aneksy" or "dokumenty do akt małżeństw" in Polish (there appears to be no standard name), are documents which support various facts in the marriage registration, such as the birth information for the bride or groom from another town, or the death or divorce of a former spouse. Very few of these "marriage supplements" have been microfilmed by the LDS, and none for the Kielce-Radom region. However, they do exist in the various Polish State Archives branches, but they were not included in the inventories in Miriam Weiner's Jewish Roots in Poland.

For more information about "marriage supplement" records, see the article "Tykocin Jewish Marriages", by Donald M. Levinsohn, in Landsmen (Quarterly Publication of the Suwałk-Łomża Interest Group for Jewish Genealogists), Vol. 5, No. 4 (Spring 1995), pages 20-41.

The Sandomierz Archives also holds "Books of Residents" (Księgi Mieszkanców) for Ożarów (ca. 1890-1920s in Russian, and 1930s in Polish), and possibly for other regional towns as well.

Opatów Yizkor List

From the Apt Yizkor Book

by Steven Weiss

My paternal great-grandfather was from Opatów (Apt), as were his parents and grandparents. Their family name was Shulmeister. I have created an index of names memorialized in the Opatów yizkor book in order to help others involved in Opatów research.

The Opatów yizkor book was published in Israel in 1966. Original title: Apt (Opatow); sefer zikaron le-ir va-em be-yisrael [Apt; a town which does not exist any more]. Editor: Z. Yasheev. (Tel Aviv: The Apt Organization in Israel, USA, Canada, and Brazil, 1966). 464 pages. Languages: Hebrew, Yiddish and English.

Memorial boxes were taken out by families to commemorate their relatives killed in the Holocaust. These memorials can be found on pages 407-441. Most are written in Yiddish but some are in Hebrew. This necrology is an index of names taken from these memorial boxes. If a sibling was listed with the name of the spouse and children, a separate listing was made apart from the names of the parents. Needless to say, this is not a complete list of Opatów Jews killed.

Jewish Records Indexing Poland Project Update: Polish State Archives Project

by Stan Diamond and Warren Blatt

Jewish Records Indexing Poland (JRI-Poland) has entered into a milestone agreement with the Polish State Archives (PSA), to index their holdings of Jewish vital records that were not microfilmed by the Mormons (LDS). These are the Jewish vital records from the years 1875 to 1898, generally.

Until now, these vital records from the last decades of the 19th century have not been available outside of Poland, and to search them has meant hiring the Polish State Archives or a private researcher (when available), by the hour, to find records. We well know that no one will research as thoroughly as we ourselves, and without exact name spellings and dates, we might not get what we paid for from the archives or even a motivated private researcher.

The work is being done on an archive by archive basis. Work starts on a specific archive after a volunteer agrees to become "Archive Coordinator". There are 75 branches of the Polish State Archives. Seven of these branch Archives hold Jewish vital records for towns in the Kielce-Radom region: Kielce, Jędrzejów, Pińczów, Starachowice, Sandomierz, Radom and Piotrków Trybunalski. For a list of which Archive holds which town's records, consult Miriam Weiner's Jewish Roots in Poland, or see previous issues of the Kielce-Radom SIG Journal (I:2, pages 3-7; I:4, page 24; II:2, pages 21-24).

Here's how the process works: JRI-Poland will purchase the index pages for the non-microfilmed years for all towns in the branch archive. As funds are raised, the records for each town will be indexed by the JRI-Poland team in Warsaw. The post-1867 records are in Russian and the data entry is done in Cyrillic. JRI-Poland has developed a program to convert the entries to Latin character spelling and when released, these will be added to the JRI-Poland database on the JewishGen web site: <<http://www.jewishgen.org/jri-pl>>. The process starts with the creation of an inventory of the microfilmed records for all the towns in the branch archive. This ensures that index pages for all years/types not previously filmed by the LDS are ordered. The inventorying is coordinated by the Archive Coordinator).

Once the data has been added to the JRI-Poland database, you will be able to search for your family surnames using Daitch-Mokotoff soundex, and for every name you will find the year of the document, document type and record (akt) number. You may then easily order a copy of the document from the Polish State Archives, using the special order form on the JRI-Poland web site. The price for a photocopy of each document is $10. This process is much easier and less expensive than having the archive conduct a fishing expedition for you.

The cost to index each town's Jewish vital records for these 30 years is typically $200-$1,000, depending upon the size of the town. This includes the cost of purchasing the photocopies of the index pages and the entering of all the entries into the database by experienced Russian-speaking professionals in Poland. If every researcher listed in the JewishGen Family Finder (JGFF) with an interest in a town contributes $30, each town's goal could easily be achieved. As a special bonus, all those contributing to the indexing of their town's records will be eligible to receive a complete copy of the entire database.

JRI-Poland now has two major components. The first, Jewish Records Indexing - Poland, is the indexing of the LDS microfilms of Jewish vital records, comprising about 2000 microfilms from more than 500 Polish towns. These microfilms generally include Jewish records from 1826 up to the 1860s or 1880s, with a few rare cases of 20th century records. Indices to records for more than 100 towns are already included in the database.

The second component is the new "Polish State Archives Project". While the LDS microfilms contain approximately two million Jewish vital records, it is estimated that there are at least another five million 19th century Jewish vital records that were not microfilmed. Generally, these cover the last 25-35 years of the 19th century, when many of our grandparents and great-grandparents were living in Poland.

* Approximately half of the LDS microfilm collection is available in Israel at the Douglas E. Goldman Jewish Genealogy Center at Beth Hatefutsoth in Tel Aviv.

1. Jewish Records Indexing - Poland. The indexing of the LDS microfilms is being done by "Shtetl CO-OPs" for those towns with microfilmed records. Volunteer leaders having an interest in those particular towns head these CO-OPs, and the leaders assemble teams to do the data entry from photocopies of index pages. At present there are Shtetl CO-OPs in six countries, U.S., Canada, Israel, United Kingdom, Australia and Brazil. Another vital role is being played by the volunteers of the non-profit Toronto Copy Service, which photocopies the index pages from the LDS microfilms for some of the Shtetl CO-OPs. For more information on Shtetl CO-OPs and how you can get involved, see Kielce-Radom SIG Journal II:1, page 50.

2. The Polish State Archives Project is being done in Poland on an archive-by-archive basis with a JRI-Poland "Archive Coordinator" for each archive. He or she appoints Town Leaders to handle fundraising for the records of each town within the archive. Polish professionals do the data entry - from photocopies of index pages. Copies of records may then be ordered from the Polish State Archives at $10 each by simply printing out, filling in and mailing the order form provided on the JRI-Poland web site.

However, major challenges remain. Firstly, JRI-Poland must continue to find and mobilize volunteers to start up Shtetl CO-OPs for the remaining 400 towns in the LDS microfilms. Secondly, "Archive Coordinators" are needed for the Polish State Archives Project. Thirdly, these Archive Coordinators, in turn, need to identify and enlist potential Town Leaders to take on the responsibility of fundraising for their towns' records' indexing. Participation is the key word, and more and more volunteers are needed from every country. Nothing will happen without your participation. If you want to see your town's records indexed, then volunteer to be an "Archive Coordinator" or "Town Leader". See the JRI-PL web page for more information: <<http://www.jewishgen.org/jri-pl>>.

The Synagogue in Klimontów

By Adam Penkalla

"Synagoga w Klimontowie (Woj. Tarnobrzeskie)"

The Klimontów synagogue is important among brick synagogues in Poland; it is so largely because of the state of its preservation. It needs a little restoration and conservation work to regain its old appearance. Little scholarly work has been done on it¹; the reason being the time of the synagogue's construction in the mid 19th century as well as the overall scarcity of comprehensive studies on the architecture of brick synagogues in Poland. Also, the sources are limited. My research yielded only the correspondence of the Klimontów County Office [gmina] with the superior authorities.² However, the analysis of these materials allows understanding two important issues: the role of the authorities in undertaking decisions concerning the synagogue's construction, and the importance of the year 1851 and Mr. Sobkowski's participation in its construction. A Polish inscription on the front wall of the building, difficult to decipher, contains information about these issues.

The beginning of Jewish settlement in Klimontów can be linked with the town's founding in 1604 by the Podlasie Voivode Zbigniew Ossolinski. As in most private towns, Jewish settlement apparently found no serious impediments. Klimontów remained a private town until 1869; it was not granted the privilege of de non tolerandis Iudeis. Also, we have no evidence of serious conflicts between Polish and Jewish populations during the whole existence of the local Jewish community.

A 1633 statistic informs about the size of Jewish settlement: in the town of 530 there were 129 Jews; 11 Jews and 22 Christians died that year as a result of an epidemics.³ Since the mid 17th century the town gradually declines; at the same time, a large influx of the Jews begins. In ¹ Essentially, there is one brief entry by Jerzy Z. Łoziński and Tadeusz Przypkowski in Katalog zabytków sztuki w Polsce. Powiat sandomierski [Catalog of the Historical Art Objects in Poland. Sandomierz District] (Warsaw, 1963), vol. III, fasc. 11, p. 19. The synagogue is mentioned by W. Kukliński, Miasto prywatne Klimontów i jego kościoły (Sandomierz, nd., p. LI), and by the anonymous author of Opis historyczno-statystyczny miasta Klimontowa (Sandomierz 1851, the manuscript stored in the parish archive in Klimontów). In September 1978, the Office of Designs at the State Bureau for the Preservation of Historical Artifacts [Państwowe Przedsiębiorstwo Pracownie Konserwacji Zabytków, henceforth PKZ; its regional chapter, WKZ] in Sandomierz prepared survey documentation of the synagogue, and the Office of Photography, its photographic documentation. In 1979, the Office of Scientific-Historical Documentation prepared architectural-historical documentation. These documentations, executed on the initiative of the Province's Curator of Historical Artifacts [Wojewódzki Konserwator Zabytków, WKZ], are stored in the Office for the Documentation of Historical Artifacts of the WKZ in Sandomierz, the PKZ library in Kielce, and in the Klimontów Town and County Office, the project's sponsor. We shall add that in 1952 Przypkowski took photographs of the synagogue and the Jewish cemetery in Klimontów, which are their oldest iconographic documents; they are held at the Institute of the Arts of the Polish Academy of Sciences [PAN] in Warsaw. [Editor's Note: See two of these 1952 photographs in Miriam Weiner's Jewish Roots in Poland, pages 162 and 419].

1727, the Sandomierz archdeacon Dominik Lochman after visiting Klimontów parish noted: "Iudeai in hoc oppido manent plurimi habentes Synagogam".⁴ In 1764-1766, the territory of the Klimontów Roman Catholic parish (i.e. the area larger than that the town itself) was inhabited by 336 Catholics and 340 Jews.⁵ These numbers illustrate the size of Jewish settlement in the town that already in the mid 17th century was dominated by Jewish population. This situation would remain until 1942, the deportation and destruction of the Klimontów Jewry.

In the mid 19th century, i.e. the time of building the synagogue, it was recorded that "the majority of inhabitants worked in crafts, then in agriculture and industry;" also "tidiness [okhedostwo] of Jews working in trade and crafts" was observed.⁶

Establishing the exact date of the beginning and completing the synagogue's construction is difficult because of the character of the sources. Jerzy Z. Łoziński and Tadeusz Przypkowski indicate 1851 as the year when the synagogue was completed, probably linking this date with the inscription at its front facade.⁷ However, the anonymous author of the town's statistical-historical description, written in Klimontów in 1851, notes that the synagogue "is under construction".⁸ This information, compared with the data in the Klimontów town records for the years 1857-1865 allow the assumption that 1851 should be regarded as a year when the construction had been carried on. Among these records we find schedules, compiled in the years 1857-1866, pertaining to the lists of housing premiums [składka kwaterunkowa].⁹ They contain the names of real estate owners, and list the buildings specifying the material used in their construction and their value determined by the Fire Association [Towarzystwo Ogniowe]. In 1857-1865, the Jewish community owned a rabbi's wooden house, one wooden and one brick school, and a wooden hospital. The 1857 schedule lists the synagogue but omits the information about its value and construction material. Such information is provided for religious buildings owned by the Roman-Catholic parish. In 1865, the budget of the Jewish community shows the sum of 60 silver rubles allocated for purchasing candles for the synagogue.¹⁰ This is the first such information in the community's financial reports. It is possible, however, that the question of the dates of the beginning and completion of the synagogue's construction may be answered by researching the 19th century control reports on the Roman Catholic parish in Klimontów. Since the Jews were the only non-Catholics within its territory, this information may have been recorded. However, these documents, stored in the archives of the diocese in Sandomierz have not been made available to this author.

We know more about the activity preceding the synagogue's construction. The work started in the 1840s. In 1846, the Government of the Radom Gubernia [Rząd Gubernialny Radomski], in its memorandum to the Governmental Commission of Internal and Religious Affairs [Komisja Rządowa Spraw Wewnętrznych i Duchowych, KRSW] presented an "anschlag" [budget] of the anticipated expenses of building a brick synagogue in Klimontów, which the local Jews declared to cover from their own contributions. This budget did not survive. Before sending the memorandum out, there was a meeting with the head of Sandomierz district, where the synagogue's blueprints, sketches, as well as the list of expenses and the allotment of contributions were discussed. It was stressed that the local, district and province authorities did not have objections against the project.¹¹ Also in 1846, the memorandum, plans, and the anshlag were sent from the Department of Industry and Crafts to the Department of Religions with a note, important for the synagogue's outlook today: "The presented plan, especially in regard to the building's outside appearance, did not conform to the standards of good proportions; also, proposed covering the roof with shingles [gony] was against the regulations. For these reasons the plan and the anshlag have been revised".¹² As a result, the amended list of expenses was returned to the Government of the Radom Gubernia. The initial sum of 2743 silver rubles, 13.3 kopecks assigned for the construction was increased to 4435 rubles, 6.25 kopeck, and the building was to be covered with tin. To assure collection of this sum, the Department of Religions obliged the provincial authorities to take from the Jewish population declarations that it would cover the higher bill. This was the condition for starting the construction work.¹³ For that purpose, following the practice of Jewish communities, a committee for the building of the synagogue was established in Klimontów. We have no information about its activity.¹⁴ The members of the community spent a total of 30,000 Polish złotys on the building of the synagogue.¹⁵ We note that the community built the synagogue using local resources. The work had not been put up to contract, a common practice at that time.¹⁶

The Klimontów synagogue was built in the 1850s, a part of the wave of rapid development that took place in Jewish communities. Its effect was taking down old wooden houses of prayer, and erecting new, brick ones.¹⁷ The beginning of this wave could be already seen in the 1830s, when the dilapidated wooden bathhouse and the kosher slaughterhouse were replaced with brick buildings.¹⁸ The poor state of the old synagogue (it was probably the one mentioned by Dominik Lochman in 1727) for which repairs in 1843-1844 and 1846 consumed substantial sums of money, was likely the reason for building a new brick one.¹⁹ The community's financial effort was apparently redirected towards this goal, since from 1846 the budget does not mention expenses for repairing the synagogue.

Very little can be said about the synagogue's history in the second half of the 19th and the beginning of the 20th century. Between 1867-1906, the portion of budget assigned to the synagogue was limited to providing candles and heating.²⁰ Only once in 1893, an unspecified repair of the synagogue cost 291.5 silver rubles.²¹ In the interwar period, the Klimontów Jewish community was socially active. It was dominated by orthodox parties: the Agudah and the Mizrahi. Because of the number of members paying dues and the value of the property, Klimontów was counted among small communities in the Kielce region. The community financial records do not show larger sums allocated towards restoration of the building, which allows the assumption that the concern of the kehilla and the community was limited to its immediate maintenance.²²

September 1939 started the last chapter in the history of the Klimontów synagogue. As a result of the deportations of the Jewish population from neighboring villages, and Viennese Jews from the Ostrowiec ghetto, the number of Jews in Klimontów grew from 3100 to 4000. In October and November 1942, the Klimontów Jews were deported to the death camp in Treblinka and to the Sandomierz ghetto.²³

During the war the synagogue gradually deteriorated. After the war, its interior underwent minor changes while the building was adopted for a vegetable and fruit purchasing center and warehouse, the function it serves until now. In 1959, by the court order, the ownership was transferred to the state treasury (skarb państwa).²⁴ The documentation and inventory work that started in 1978 is connected with the project of adopting the synagogue for the local cultural center.

The Klimontów synagogue is located in the eastern part of the town. Its front (western) facade faces a small square adjacent to the market square. The back (eastern) elevation borders with the property presently belonging to a school. The schoolyard was once a Jewish cemetery; in the 1950s there were still about 50 matzevot; some of them originating from the end of the 18th century.²⁵ The synagogue once occupied the central place in the complex of Jewish ritual buildings, and was the main building of the Jewish part of the town. Next to it there were the rabbi's house and the mikvah.

Presently, the synagogue is a stucco building of bricks bonded with lime-based mortar, with no basement. It is oriented, rectangular in form, topped with a low tin-covered hip roof. The building is on a rectilinear plan measuring: the facade, 14.36m., the east elevation, 14.61m., the south and the north elevations, 27.32m. Fronting the facade is a four-column Ionic monumental portico crowned with a wooden pediment. The remaining three elevations have pilasters and semicircular windows. Two vestibules on either sides of the main entrance are adjacent from the west to the single-spaced prayer hall. On the second floor, above the vestibules, there is the women's gallery.

The prayer hall occupies the center of the synagogue. It is an auditorium set on the plan of a semi-rectangle measuring: the western side, 12.36 m; the eastern side, 12.58; the southern and the northern sides, 13.63 m. A concrete floor, whitewashed walls, and a panel ceiling determine the present outlook of the space. In the centre of the ceiling's eastern wall there is a polychromy above the Aron HaKodesh, consisting of a crown and two tablets with the Hebrew text of the Ten Commandments. On either sides of the tablets there is a medallion with the image of a lion and a deer. Below the tablets, there is a relief with two stone lions placed above a small semi-circular niche. On the eastern wall there is another medallion, set centrally above the women's gallery, with an illegible Hebrew inscription. A painted strip separating the ceiling and the panels, and a painted decoration surrounding the missing candelabra complete the decoration of the hall. On the eastern wall, traces of Hebrew inscriptions can be seen from under the contemporary paint.

On the first floor, a semicircular vaulted doorway leads into the synagogue, whose floor is below the street level. On the floor, there are traces of a tiling. To the right, there is a vestibule that formerly served as a cheder or a kehilla room. One of the windows is walled up. Through the peeling ceiling, the planks of the framing can be seen. The left vestibule is presently used as the office of the purchasing center. These two vestibules and the hallway dividing them are separated from the prayer room by the brick wall; its left part has two niches.

A high parapet with shaped balusters supporting a shaped banister separates the women's gallery on the second floor from the prayer room.

A wooden framing with rafters supports the synagogue's roof covered with tin; on its west side there is the wooden frame of the wooden pediment.

The three-sectional facade is fronted by a Ionic portico with four columns supporting the entablature with a shaped molding that runs around the building. The facade is crowned with a wooden pediment with a triangular paladian window. The shafts of the columns are of plastered bricks, the bases and capitols, of stone. The columns are positioned on small brick plinths. Between the columns, on both sides there are plastered traces of the supports of the former stairs leading to the women's gallery. The faces of the stairs show traces of rustication. In front of the women's entrance which is presently walled up, there are remains of a wooden construction. The second floor windows and the women's doorway are decorated with stone plaques. In the plaque above the entrance, there is an inscription containing the name Sobkowski and the date 1851. On the street level, there is the main doorway with semicircular top.

The four-partition south and north elevations have parallel layout. A shaped molding runs at their tops. The sections are separated by flat pilasters with windows between them. The southern elevation pilasters have no shaped arches. The windows preserved traces of woodworking; they have been partially walled up in contemporary times. In the southern wall, there is a newly made doorway.

The eastern elevation is two-sectional, divided by a flat pilaster, with a shaped molding at the top. Both windows have been recently walled up; in the left one, a stone arch crowning the window has survived.

A deteriorated brick sill runs in the lower part of the north, east and south walls.

The Klimontów synagogue, like other buildings of this kind, served several functions in Jewish community. Above all, it was the main center of religious practice but it was also a center of social life. Here the laws were made public, the issues of concern for the Jewish community were discussed. However, the building's spatial layout and design were determined by its main religious function.

As already mentioned, the synagogue's main space was the prayer hall with a bimah, usually located in the center. From that elevated place, during Saturday morning prayers, with only men present, the Torah was read and the commentaries to liturgical texts were read. The Klimontów synagogue's bimah has not survived; the floor shows barely visible traces of where it was. At the eastern wall, there was the Aron HaKodesh. We do not know what it looked like. Probably a small niche below the relief with two lions served as the niche for the altar cabinet where the scrolls were stored. The altar cabinet was decorated with paintings, some of which survive. In the center, at the highest place under the ceiling of the synagogue, so that everyone could see, there are two tablets with the Hebrew text of the Decalogue. They told pious Jews about their duties towards the God and fellow man. In the medallions in either side of the tablets there are images of a lion and a deer. They illustrate the Talmudic admonition that one should be fast like a deer and strong like a lion.²⁶ The whole eastern wall was once covered with Hebrew liturgical inscriptions; the evidence are the traces of letters and fragments of Hebrew sentences visible under contemporary paint. In the wall separating the prayer room and the vestibules there are two niches, possibly the places for a water well and a collection box.

On the first floor, on either side of the hallway leading to the prayer room, there are two smaller rooms. The southern one either housed a religious school or was a kehilla room while the northern one was likely used as a foyer.

It is well known that only men partook in religious services; women witnessed from the women's part of the synagogue called babins which was a gallery on the second floor. It was probably separated from the prayer hall with a grid. Religious and social prescriptions also required separate entrances for men and women. In Klimontów, the outside stairs on either sides of the main entrance, not preserved today, led to the babins.

The elevations merit exceptional attention, considering the synagogue's state of preservation. They are modest but have well-balanced proportions and fine stonework details; the columns' bases and crown especially add to the interesting outlook of the building. Possibly, this was a result of the discussion at the Department of Industry and Crafts, caused by the fact that the earlier project "did not confirm to the standards of good proportions." The elevations which determine the synagogue's overall appearance are an interesting example of classicist style in which the synagogue was built. Judging from the state of their preservation, they have not been altered. The traces of a Hebrew inscription that once informed about the building's function: "This is no other than the house of God, this is the gate of heaven"²⁷ are preserved on the facade. Another inscription in Polish, indicating Sobkowski's participation in the project, is important for the time of the synagogue's construction in a town like Klimontów.

The analysis of the archival materials and the field survey suggest that the roof framing with unique rafters is original; so is the construction of the pediment. The window woodwork at the attic is preserved. Also, the tin cover of the roof, which was one of the conditions of its construction, is original.

The analysis of the preservation of the Klimontów synagogue suggests that its walls and internal layout have survived unaltered. All permanent elements of the building: the prayer hall, the women's gallery, the kehilla room, the roof framing and cover are intact. The war's destruction and the post-war construction work to adopt the building for a fruit and vegetable warehouse caused that only the movable elements were destroyed: the bimah and the Aron ha-Kodesh. The stairs leading to the women's part were dismantled and the door was walled up; the polychromy with inscriptions was painted over and the windows were partially walled up; in the southern wall, a doorway was made; also the molding running on the side walls and the arches on the window framings were destroyed. Yet these changes do not decrease the synagogue's artistic values. With minor restoration work, there is a good chance of bringing the synagogue back its original appearance.

The synagogue, once a landmark of the Klimontów Jewish quarter, as well as of the town as a whole, today is the sole trace of Jewish presence in the town. The construction of a brick building with a monumental four-column portico, in a town that in the mid 19th century had most of its buildings of wood, testifies to the importance of the Klimontów Jewish community, its prosperity and dynamism. It shows, along with the community's economic ability, its desire to mark its presence in the town where at the time of the synagogue's construction the only monumental brick buildings were the collegiate church (which also served as a parish), and the Dominican church and abbey, both developed and expanded in the previous period. No wonder that contemporary Klimontowians regarded the synagogue as the "jewel" of the town.²⁸ This notion is justified by the building's architectural values, not eradicated by the war's destruction and post-war remodeling. The synagogue stands today in its original spatial layout and form, with good proportions and correct architectural details.

Its design is a synthesis of traditional synagogue architecture and the architectural trends of the time. The general construction plan: a rectangular layout with a single-space, nearly square prayer hall; a separate vestibule on the floor level; and a women's gallery on the second floor with a separate entrance, follows a long tradition in designing this type of buildings reaching back to the Renaissance or even Middle Ages.²⁹ In Kielce region, we see a similar interior layout in the synagogues erected in the 18th century: in Chęciny, Szydłów, Połaniec, Pińczów, et al.³⁰ These features related to religious requirements were also preserved in buildings constructed in the 19th century, for example the synagogues in Kępno, Nowy Korczyn, Radom.³¹

Klimontów brought forth an interesting, unique architectural design. The entrance to the women's part leads through two pairs of stairs on either side of the main entrance. Apparently they were built after erecting the four-column portico. This may be surmised from the finished bases of the columns immured in the stairs' face walls.

The design work on the project started in 1840s. In architecture, this was still the period of the classicist style, which was also promoted by the authorities; many buildings both secular and religious were built in this style. The classicist trend, striving to achieve a sense of harmony, balance and peace, found its full realization in Klimontów synagogue. We discern it in the four-column Ionic portico; its expression are the side elevations divided with flat pilasters and topped with a shaped molding, and the plaques on the facade. In Klimontów, especially important are the elaborate bases and capitols of the columns. The care of detail suggest that they were copied from a pattern book; this gives an excellent credit to the artisan. Equally elaborate are stone plaques, however, the carving of the stone lions at the eastern wall is of a much inferior quality. The material of the stone details allows the assumption that they were executed in Kunów stone workshop, active in the 19th century. It is possible that Jewish stoneworkers whose presence in Kunów is registered in the town documents, participated in these works.³²

The Klimontów synagogue's style draws upon the rectangular temple of the antiquity surrounded with a colonnade, with the walls divided by pilasters, and with a portico in front of a three-sectional facade; it mirrors the designs of religious buildings that were promoted in architectural pattern books. The same style is found in designs of parish churches by Piotr Aigner.³³ According to Aigner's monographer, Tadeusz Stefan Jaroszewski, these designs were used by less independent provincial architects who usually adopted Aigner's general layout.³⁴ Perhaps this was also the case in Klimontów, especially since Aigner's works were promoted by the authorities.

Judging from the very vague sources, the work on the project started locally. The first meeting was held at the head's of the Sandomierz district. Then it was discussed at the Department of Industry and Crafts of the KRSW. The decisions made there affected the synagogue's ultimate appearance. The designer, or rather designers of the synagogue remain unknown. Since the first design was developed locally, the author should be sought in the circle of the head of the Sandomierz district. Jozef Suchocki (1795-1852), the Sandomierz district master-builder, who wrote of himself that he designed and built houses and churches in the Sandomierz and Opatow areas, could have been somehow involved in the work.³⁵ Another possible group of people were officials at the Department of Industry and Crafts of the KRSW. Sobkowski, whose name is so prominently commemorated on the building's facade, had an important although unknown in particulars role in the work. In the town documents from the mid 19th century, Jan Sobkowski appears as a "mason"; he also was the owner of estates and land in Klimontów.³⁶

The Klimontów synagogue, depreciated by missing interior decoration, destroyed during the last war, and adapted to its new function did not lose its artistic, and above all, historical value. Changing back its function can help restoring its former appearance; considering the building's state of preservation, this seems to be an urgent necessity. Further scholarly investigation of 19th century brick synagogues will probably uncover new values of the Klimontów synagogue.

Biuletyn Żydowskiego Instytutu Historycznego w Polsce

by Warren Blatt

The article in this issue "The Synagogue in Klimontów" was originally published in Polish in a 1980 issue of the scholarly journal Biuletyn Żydowskiego Instytutu Historycznego w Polsce (henceforth BŻIH), the Bulletin of the Jewish Historical Institute in Poland.

We are grateful for the cooperation of The Jewish Historical Institute (Żydowski Instytut Historyczny w Polsce) in Warsaw, and its director, Dr. Feliks Tych, in permitting the Kielce-Radom SIG to translate various articles from BŻIH into English, and publish them in the Kielce-Radom SIG Journal.

BŻIH is a quarterly journal, which has been published in Warsaw since 1951. It is available at most major Judaica and university libraries. There have been nearly 200 issues published to date, containing over one thousand articles. Each issue contains five to eight substantive articles about the history of Polish Jewry. The articles are academic in nature, and draw upon many historical and archival sources, most yet untapped by Jewish genealogists. They cover a wide variety of subjects, ranging from local town and regional histories to architecture to theatre to biography to social movements. Many articles focus on the Holocaust period. All BŻIH articles are in Polish, and are thus unaccessible to most Jewish genealogists.

I have scanned several issues of BŻIH, and identified a few articles which would be of interest to researchers of the Kielce-Radom area. There is much valuable material to be mined here. However, the SIG is currently lacking qualified volunteer Polish translators, or the funds to hire them. If you are able and willing to translate Polish, or know of someone who would, or are willing to provide funding for translation, please contact me via e-mail at <wblatt@jewishgen.org>.

Pińczów

Notes from Heshel Teitelbaum:

The Jewish death records for Pińczów for the years 1811, 1815, 1820, and 1824 have not been microfilmed apparently.

Unlike those for other towns in this time period (1810-1825), the Jewish civil records in Pińczów are completely separate from the Roman Catholic records.

All of these records were indexed by Polish clerks. On occasion the clerks erred in choosing 'surnames' - giving a patronym or the spousal name - even when the surname was available (in the text). I have been faithful to the index version, but have indicated supplemental information in the extracts.

Most of the 'surnames' assigned by the clerks doing the index are not true surnames. Without making a study of the rest of the records, it is sometimes difficult to tell the difference between a patronymic and a surname derived from a patronymic. Readers interested in this town should do their own analysis and draw their own conclusions.

I have also been faithful to the clerk's version of the declarant's name according to the following principle: Whatever the clerk wrote in Polish I also transcribed in Polish. However, if the Hebrew signature revealed additional information, I transcribed the extra bit phonetically and recorded it following the notation "(H)". Thus, the form "Moszek (H) bar Yosef" means that the clerk wrote Moszek in the text, but that the declarant signed in Hebrew giving his father's name too.

House numbers are given in the "H #" column, as an aid to conjecturing surnames. Unfortunately clerks stopped giving house numbers in 1825.

The notation "Bayla z Moszkow" for a woman means Bayla daughter of Moszek.

The "Mother / Survivors" column usually contains the names, occupations and ages of survivors or witnesses. I have used following codes:

- | | |
|--|---|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • f = father • b = brother • h = husband • s = son • sil = son-in-law • mu = maternal uncle • rel = relative • gs = grandson • pn = paternal nephew (brother's son) • mn = maternal nephew (sister's son) • pc = paternal cousin (paternal uncle's son) • mc = maternal cousin (maternal uncle's son) | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • m = mother • bil = brother-in-law • w = wife • ss = step-son • fil = father-in-law • pu = paternal uncle • g = guardian • gf = grandfather |
|--|---|

I have not yet had the time to analyze the records beyond the charting of families of interest to me. So you will not find conjectured surnames, with one or two exceptions. There must be an analysis of house numbers, patronymic patterns, names of couples, etc. in order to add conjectured surnames. My own conjectures are indicated by square brackets [...].

If readers are able to make any surname conjectures, please send them to me at <heshel@science.uottawa.ca>.

The data is released for the purpose of "personal" or humanitarian (Holocaust related) research, and that no reader may profit commercially from the data, nor use the data to promote religious agendas.

Klimontów

This issue also contains extracts of Jewish birth and marriage records from Klimontów, a town in Sandomierz powiat (district) of Radom gubernia, for 1826-1839.

Comments from Ronald Greene:

A great number of writers have recommended that one does a complete extraction of a town, rather than just picking out known names. Since I didn't know my grandfather's name -- he left Poland using purchased discharge papers and it isn't known whether the name he subsequently used in London, New York and Vancouver was the purchased name, his original name, or another name -- the full extraction process made much sense to me and I plunged in. It was also recommended that I start the process from 1826 rather than from the Russian-language period. Since I knew not a word of Polish, and even less Russian, the relative ease of reading Polish made some sense. I acquired the Shea and Frazin books and ordered the microfilm from Salt Lake City. When it arrived I was pleasantly surprised to find that the handwriting was generally excellent and legible.

I printed the first four birth entries the first day and took them home to practise my "extraction" skills. The first entry took me an hour and 15 minutes to decipher, the second 20 minutes and after a dozen I was down to 7 minutes. Later my average was under 5 minutes per entry. In the second year of entries I already had found a witness who might be an ancestor — someone I might not have found if I just went through the index. Generally, however, the witnesses seem to be professional or standard witnesses, probably people whose occupation kept them near the registrar's office and who could be called upon easily.

Although the handwriting was excellent, we all too soon discovered that some characters can be misleading, such as the crossed l that looked too much like a t, the sz that looks like a p or the ie that looks like a u. Worse from my point of view was that often there was no difference between i, e and c, and compounded by my lack of familiarity with normal Polish letter sequences, undoubtedly I have made some mistakes. Along these lines it is possible that a name such as Malka was read as Matka, or Jarmula was read as Jarmuta. Some of the later years were written in a different hand, by a different scribe who was more concerned with saving paper than producing a legible record for the likes of me.

Do not put too much emphasis on the spelling. Often the same surname is spelled differently in the same entry. When the father's name and the child's name are spelled differently, which is the error? Simple vowel replacements are most common, and due to lack of space in this journal these have been ignored, as have Ch vs H replacements (Chajm for Haim). If two quite plausible spellings were used in the entry, I have used one and given the second in round brackets, such as GRYNBAL (GRYNBLAD). If the index provided a different spelling than used in the entry, that spelling is given in square brackets, such as ZWEIK [CWEIK]. If I had reason to believe that the spelling was in error, or wasn't as easily resolved as the previous examples, I have either put a question mark or added the comment "cf" meaning "compare with", such LUDERMAN [cf LIBERMAN]. Square brackets may also imply some question or conjecture on my part.

I later went through and compared my extractions to the index and rechecked the entries, making corrections where I had made apparent errors. The indexes appear to have been compiled some years later. On occasion they seem quite different in spelling from the entries. I have found the odd error in the indexes although they are generally quite accurate and sometimes aided me in figuring out the spelling of a name.

Once you have selected names that look promising I strongly suggest you read the original entries on microfilm yourself so you can't blame me for misreadings. I would appreciate hearing if you find a mistake so that I can correct my records.

And as to dates, I believe that we should accept the recorded dates with a good dose of salt. For instance, in 1831 what appears to be the same couple had children born seven months apart. In 1839 there were eleven successive entries for Koprzywnica. This seems highly unlikely. It might indicate difficult travelling conditions, or a lack of concern for getting the registrations done.

Since I have kept this information on a true database I can provide printouts for selected names or provide additional information which has been omitted from this publication due to space limitations. You may contact me at P.O. Box 1351, Victoria, B.C. Canada V8W 2W7, or by e-mail at <pdgreen@pinc.com>.

For the marriages I have added an asterisk (*) after a parent's name when they were reported as being deceased. I also tried to match up deaths and births for the children who had been born from 1826. There were a surprising number of deaths that I could not match up with a corresponding birth. Were these people more mobile than I've assumed, or did they not register births or were there errors in name and sex of the births or deaths? Strangely one case was the child of the rabbi and another the child of one of the "Standard Witnesses" people who one would assume would have been most likely to have complied with the letter of the law.

Additional notes on the Klimontów extracts follow the marriage records.
